

Listen, you need to think about the implications of what you want and don't want

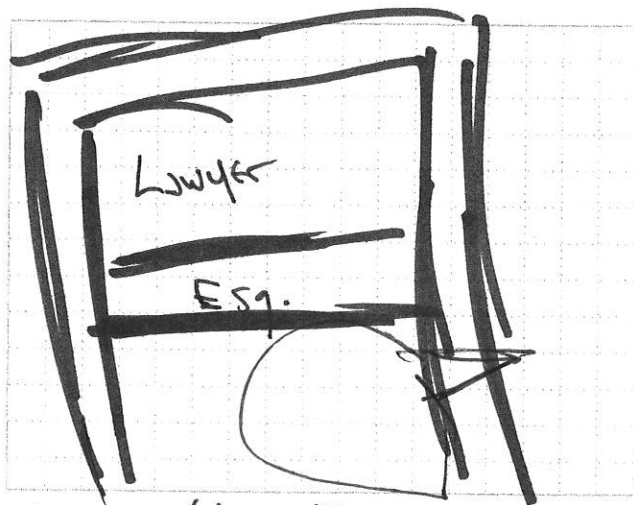

Put everything that is yours on bare.

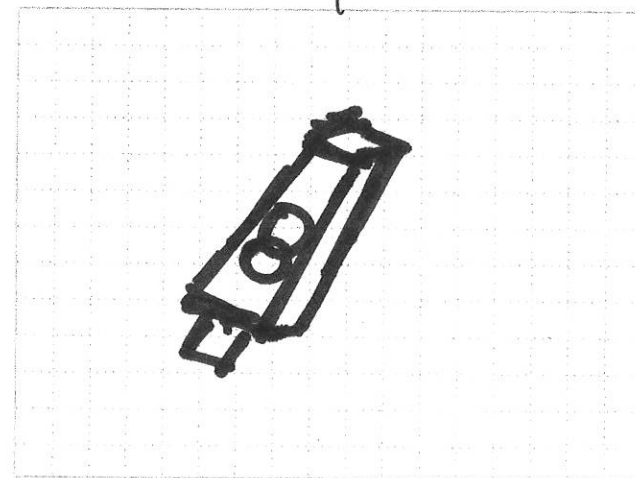

It isn't like you are stealing anything. This is the process. Move it from one account to the other. You are just controlling access looking out for yourself.

Once the settlement is finalized all that is held in escrow will be divided & you both decide.

Your data like your money is property. I am not to be an advocate. ~~the~~

During the settlement ~~process~~ <sup>hearing</sup> there will be a formal process. BA for now just take what you can't stand to lose.
